

Practice and academic assessors

Reference: PA1 Last Updated: 19/12/2018

Who are practice and academic assessors and how are they prepared?

Practice assessors and academic assessors can be registered nurses, midwives, and nursing associates, or in the case of prescribing programmes, any suitably qualified and experienced prescriber. [There are also additional requirements as set out in the Standards for post-registration qualifications for those who will fulfil the role for SCPHN or SPQ programmes.]

Practice assessors assess a student's practice learning within a practice learning experience or series of practice learning experiences. Academic assessors collate and confirm student achievement in the academic environment for each part of the programme, as well as working with the practice assessor to confirm the student's progress in their practice learning. The academic assessor will work with a nominated practice assessor to make recommendations for progression for the student they are assigned to.

The academic assessor role is similar to the practice assessor role in many ways; but given that learning and assessment is structured differently in the academic environment, the academic assessor role is expressed to reflect this difference. Students may have on-going course work and assessments that are conducted by those delivering the academic learning, such as lecturers. The academic assessor is expected to 'collate' and 'confirm' the student's academic and practice learning outcomes for the part of the programme they are assigned to the student, before recommending them for progression on to the next part of the programme.

They will have been prepared and supported to take up their role and will have current knowledge and expertise relevant for the proficiencies and programme outcomes they are collating and confirming.
